Martin B. Jones, M.D.

Dr. Martin B. Jones' medical career began in a Texas Panhandle small town practicing a full range of family medicine including obstetrics. During the last 17 years he worked in areas of emergency medicine and urgent care during which time he developed a growing interest in occupational medicine.

Dr. Jones received his Bachelor of Science Degree from the University of Oregon. He earned his medical degree at the Oregon Health Sciences University, and completed his Family Practice residency in Merced, California. He is board certified by the American Board of Family Medicine.

Dr. Jones is a Fellow of American Academy of Disability Examining Physicians and a Fellow of the American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine. He has served as a Designated Doctor for the Division of Workers' Compensation since 2001 and has been a speaker for the designated doctor certification training course on topics including Extent of Injury, Return to Work and Non-Musculoskeletal impairment ratings. He has taught designated doctor workshops on Core Competencies, and Extent of Injury. He has also served as one of the subject matter experts in developing and updating the Certification Examination for Designated Doctors.

Dr. Jones is currently the National Chief Medical Officer for HCA's Urgent Care Division which includes over 90 CareNow urgent care clinics and pediatric urgent care clinics across the country.