Proposed purchase of an alpha stimulator

Decision

It is determined that there is no medical necessity for the proposed purchase of an alpha stimulator to treat this patient's medical condition.

Rationale/Basis for Decision

Medical record documentation indicates the patient was evaluated and an intensive treatment program was begun. Appropriate diagnostic testing and referrals were made. In an attempt to wean the patient from narcotic pain medication, the alpha stimulator has been used in the therapist office. While there has been success in this setting, there is no documentation this unit has been used in a home trial setting. National standard of care indicate a 30 to 90 day trial period of utilization in a home setting with proper documentation of effectiveness prior to the purchase of the unit. Therefore, the purchase of an alpha stimulator is not medically necessary to treat this patient's medical condition.

This decision by the IRO is deemed to be a TWCC decision and order.
