

Joan B. Krajca-Radcliffe, M.D.

Dr. Joan B. Krajca-Radcliffe is a board-certified Orthopedic Surgeon who is fellowship-trained in sports medicine and reconstructive surgery. She received her undergraduate degree from Cornell University and did graduate work at Baylor College of Medicine and the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston (UTMB). She completed internship and residency at the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences. She did her fellowship in sports medicine and reconstructive surgery at the Foundation for Orthopedic, Athletic and Reconstructive Research and Rice University in Houston, Texas.

Dr. Krajca-Radcliffe was previously in private orthopedic practice in Texas City, League City and Galveston. She was also a clinical assistant professor at UTMB. She then joined Stevens Community Medical Center in Morris, Minnesota to establish a department of orthopedic surgery. Upon her return to Texas, she has been involved with medical-legal consulting and clinical practice coverage and is a certified Designated Doctor with the TDI-DWC.

Dr. Krajca-Radcliffe is a fellow of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons (AAOS) and was appointed to the AAOS Ethics Committee where she participated in the development of position statements, reviews and an on-line ethics training program for orthopedic residents.