

Justin Evans is a licensed attorney and a registered neutral (mediator) with the Georgia Commission on Dispute Resolution. Since 2015, Justin has served in a judicial capacity with one federal administrative agency, and for the preceding ten years, Justin worked as an attorney and a supervisory attorney with a second federal agency. In the course of his employment with these agencies, Justin has successfully conducted formal mediations as well as informal settlement conferences in a wide variety of cases, some with disputed values in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. Before joining his first federal agency, Justin spent three years as a judicial law clerk to a federal district court judge. And for one year before his clerkship, Justin worked as an associate at the international law firm of Kirkland & Ellis LLP. Justin earned his Juris Doctor degree magna cum laude from the Howard University School of Law, and his Bachelor's Degree magna cum laude in sociology and anthropology from Loyola University of Chicago. Justin's mediation work with TDI is performed exclusively in his individual capacity, and not in his capacity as a judicial officer, or in his capacity as a federal employee.
